

With General Starr turned round alone and disappeared. With desperation the Females rallied, but being without a leader they fired indiscriminately. They were beyond control, and every single man seemed to fight on his own separate account.

The volunteers were now closing around their adversaries, and, as if by way of warning, fired several volleys in rapid succession, and another of the Fenian skirmishers, an officer named Donnelly, fell to the ground. The Fenians, entirely out of order and desperate, and completely demoralised, were about to make a wild charge, when, luckily, they wheeled around and, scattering, fled in different directions.

The advance guard of the Fenian army arrived here this morning, at six o'clock. In with 1,500 men. This has created a strong feeling against General O'Neill, as General Gleason was a great favorite with the men for the very short

The Second cavalry from the Pigeon Hill fight arrived here this morning, determined to renew the fight. This afternoon the Seventh regiment of Buffalo arrived from Potsdam, on foot.

A great number of the men are leaving here in disgust. If there be not a fight this afternoon the near the boundary line. They were repulsed with a loss of one killed, one wounded in the shoulder and to the American side of the line and began dragging home.

The Warriors Straggling Home.
MALONE, N. Y., May 27, 1870.

ST. ALBANS, May 27, 1870.
The Fenian war in this section of the frontier has least one more advance into the enemy's territory, at a point not far distant from the initiatory battle on Wednesday. The town has been held by the probably not less than 3,000 scattered around the village. Some of these have lost their enthusiasm for war but the majority are having offered transportation home for such as desire it, a few have accepted the offer and departed on the various trains to-day.

satisfaction, however, in the fact that O'Neill is responsible for their humiliating position.

in es outside of the village this morning, where they were met by General Spear, the successor of O'Neil in command. He addressed them briefly.

The men received these remarks with cheers, and the men, caused probably by a gnawing appetite, and towards night they came straggling back again. General Spear is circulating actively among them.

THE GOVERNMENT ACTIVELY AT WORK.
Every plan may be frustrated, however, for the ly laws. One full company of regulars was sent up to the Franklin frontier for this purpose to-night, and three more have gone to Malaga, through the

WASHINGTON, May 27, 1870.
General GEORGE P. FOSTER, United States Marshal, District of Vermont :—

and must be ready for war which you can and are prepared or intended for the invasion of Canada by the Fenians. Communicate with the military com-come here, accompanied by Colonel Meade, Colonel Wildrick, Captain Farnsworth and Captain Gaston. They have established their head

Boston; Major Hugh Maginnis, of Cambridge, and Captain Monahan, of Burlington. They were arraigned before a United States Commissioner for ordered to recognize in the sum of $5,000 for an appearance for trial, and the others in the sum of $1,000 each. On their way to the jail Colonel Brown

General Donnelly, of Utica, who was wounded on Wednesday, died at Franklin to-day.

The United Fenian Enthusiasm—Large Sums

The Fenians of this place met this evening at their headquarters and solemnly resolved that they would

Dr. J. D. Hantaghan, an ex-surgeon of the United States Navy, who has been appointed Surgeon General of the Fenian army.

in double quick, and in a brief space of time drove the Fenians into American soil. During the retreat Michael McGann, of Troy, who had been one of the times before he reached the border. Not so, however, with Donnelly, for when shot he was unable to rise, and upon the volunteers coming up he was cap-to the driving, they are volunteers, pursuing them in hot haste. It was useless. The Fenians reached the border just in time, though the volunteers did not suspect that they knew their way along at hand. The ever witnessed. Once having driven the Fenians out of Canada, the volunteers returned to Holbrook's Corner, which is about a mile and a half from the Thus terminated the battle of Trout river, a hasco of the first water. That the Fenians displayed a wild bravery and a reckless courage could scarcely be the mad step, the Fenians were rather the objects of pity than censure. Never did nounced for the utter heartlessness and deceit which throughout the entire affair they conspicuously exhibited. The advance of the ground ten minutes longer, not one of them would have been left to tell the tale. Nothing could have saved them but immediate flight, and the Fenians in

BACK TO MALONE.

So soon as they got clear of the Canadian terri-to return to their homes until they got even with the Canadians. Some of the more courageous remained at the encampment in order to take charge

A SORRY LOOKING CROWD.
Never since the worst days of the late rebellion dusty road. It was a hot and sultry day and the heat told terribly upon them. Completely exhausted, some dropped upon the road.

On all sides penury and want stood staring them in the face. Sleep was the only boon, and well did all avail themselves waiting to drink, while at farm houses on the way humane people, forgetting all other circumstances, rendered, in some few instances, some derly, but their dejection and hardship imparted to their appearance. Otherwise decent, a careworn and emaciated aspect. It was the general

Notwithstanding the reported Fenian defeats on the St. Lawrence frontier the Buffalo and Western Sugars, Flour and all kinds of Groceries, Molasses and Provisions to the gold standard.

FREDERICK I. KING, Counselor at Law, 260 Broadway.